She left home on Tuesday morning
Heading for December
She had dreams so bright it seems
But now she can't remember
She headed west across the land
The road stretched out ahead
And now she's here in glitter town
And singing in a band

Faded dreams, faded dreams
Where do they go
Your faded dreams
Faded dreams, faded dreams
Where do they go
Your faded dreams
Where do they go
Your faded dreams

He left home on Friday night
So very long ago
He had the last of all his fights
And set out through the snow
He hitched a ride and headed south
Towards a warmer place
And now he lives from hand to mouth
And humps it for a band

Faded dreams, faded dreams
Where do they go
Your faded dreams
Faded dreams, faded dreams
Where do they go
Your faded dreams
Where do they go
Your faded dreams

They sit down to have a drink
Somewhere beside the sea
He tells a joke, she tries to laugh
But nothing comes for free
The sun is dying in the west
Their dreams are going down
Here they are above the waves

And yet they might just drown

Faded dreams, faded dreams

Where do they go

Your faded dreams

Faded dreams, faded dreams

Where do they go

Your faded dreams

Where do they go

Your faded dreams
